

---

Ethnorace, Registration and Voting in California

---

Lisa García Bedolla
*University of California, Berkeley
Center for Latino Policy Research*

Why We Need to Consider Ethnorace

- Not all groups participate at the same rates
- Impact of age, education, income, etc. varies within and across groups
- Need to ensure reforms reflect diversity of California electorate

Reported Registration in the U.S. in November 2012, By Ethnorace and Age

Reported Registration in California in November 2012, By Ethnorace and Age

Probability of Registration among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorace and Age

Probability of Registration among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorace and Income

Probability of Registration among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorate and Nativity

Why This is Important: The New California Electorate in 2020

Why Should We Care?

- Electorate is changing but our framing/analysis has not
- Need to be certain our reforms suit the populations we're targeting
- Cultural competence and skepticism key to ensuring appropriate outreach

Probability of Voting among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorate and Age

Probability of Voting among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorace and Income

Probability of Voting among Californians in November 2012, by Ethnorate, Nativity and Time in the U.S.

